

A black and white line drawing of a friendly-looking dinosaur, possibly a Coelophysis, standing on a wooden plank surface that resembles a bridge or a path. The dinosaur is facing left, with its head turned slightly towards the viewer. It has a long neck, a small head with large, expressive eyes, and a gentle smile. Its body is covered in small, rounded scales, and its tail is long and ends in a frayed, bushy tip. The wooden planks it stands on are supported by vertical posts, and the background is a simple, light-colored area.

Let's do it!