

CLARE CONETLA NIGH LK T'ISH™

Domesticated animals are important to many cultures. They provide food, clothing, and companionship. In some cultures, animals are also used for transportation. The domestication of animals has been a key factor in the development of human civilization. It has allowed us to live in more densely populated areas and to have a more stable food supply. Domesticated animals have also played a role in the development of art and culture. They have been the subject of many stories, songs, and paintings. In addition, they have been used in a variety of ways, from working on farms to serving as pets. The domestication of animals is a testament to human ingenuity and our ability to adapt to our environment.

CCO 2 08E M2 1 03 06 14 Primitivum Coma ared iBonomitilign
 CCO 2 67L 16 17 SARK IAN® F'ndurus and Accotum
 CCO 2 4 CCO 2 6 Nighle
 CCO 2 5 C COO 2 6: apaxojisa b falkjny Larm akcepeqlj cno ois
 CCO 2 34 CCO 2 6 Ennemassidnt, nulo baidn oten agtern.